13 FINDING a pair of waders to fit properly can be problematic if you don't fall into the standard small, medium and large size ranges. But that needn't be too much of a problem now with the new Marksman range of breathable waders that are made in 16 different sizes!

The sizes start with an extra small which fits a 41-inch waist and a 42-inch chest and go up to an extra large king which will accommodate a 56-inch waist and a 58-inch chest. In between there are various short and long leg versions, while the 'king' rating means you are getting a roomier waist and chest fitting. The shoe sizes covered range from a 7-8 in the extra small to a 12-13 in the extra large.

What this all means is you can now buy a set of waders off the shelf that fit as though they were tailored just for you!

The Marksman waders have a three-layer construction for the body while five layers have been used in high wear areas from the knee down. These lightweight waders offer good protection from the elements, and they also 'breathed' really well on a hot day. There is plenty of room in the legs without them being too baggy and although the neoprene sock was a little long for my foot, this didn't cause any problems when tucked inside the wading boots. Stretchy neoprene gravel guards gave a tight seal round the boot. The elasticated braces have a quick-release fitting and a broad neoprene wading belt adds the finishing touch.
